

Handout # 5: ABA Providers in the UK

The TLC	http://www.thetlc.org
Autism Partnership	http://www.autismpartnership.co.uk
UK Young Autism Project	http://www.ukyap.org
Hand in Hand ABA	http://www.handinhandaba.co.uk
Child Autism UK	http://www.childautism.org.uk
ABA Easy Steps	http://aba-easysteps.co.uk
Sky Bound Therapies	http://www.skyboundtherapies.co.uk/

There are also individual practitioners/providers:

<http://www.autism-solutions-kent.co.uk>

DISCLAIMER: It is important to investigate any provider thoroughly. There are no laws or regulating agencies to guarantee that a provider advertising "ABA" or a "behavioural approach" will in fact adhere to any standard set of practices. Many organisations will include some "behavioral services" without offering anything like a full-time behavioural intervention (ABA) program or one overseen by a board certified behavior analyst.

Before you sign up for anything, whether it's with a centre, a school, or an independent consultant, be sure to check the service provider's qualifications- internationally the most well established and regarded are those 'board certified' by the BACB. Also as much as possible, talk to other families and seek references.